EDITORIAL COMMENT.

ON THE WRONG FOOT.

Our estimable evening contemporary, with its customary erudition, has passed in judgment upon the denunciation of Senator Foraker by Judge William Howard Taft because of the seemingly well founded charges that Foraker had accepted fees from the Standard Oil company in such amounts and at such times as to cast grave suspicion upon the honesty of some of Foraker's legislation. And that judgment is that Taft repudiates Foraker because the latter had committed the "crime of being found out." At the same time, no mention is made of the fact that Governor Haskell, of Oklahoma state, treasurer of the national Democratic committee, has committed the same crime, and that whereas Taft promptly absolved himself of affiliation with Foraker, Bryan, Kern and others of the untried are talking themselves into apoplexy in an attempt to blow the muck from the gubernatorial coat tails of one named Haskell.

Nor, again, have we heard any explanation of how it is that, in the face of horrified Bryan protests against the acceptance of campaign money from corporations, a man was made treasurer of the party and guardian of and collector for the Bryan strong-box, who had his hands deep in the coffers of the Standard Oil company. The Standard Oil, perhaps by very reason of the commodity which it handles, is the smoothest, and the dirtiest of all the corporations. It befools all with whom it comes in contact. And between W. H. Taft with his years of actual accomplishment of great works, his strength and his honesty, all back of his solemn pledge to follow out the Roosevelt warfare for public honesty, and W. J. Bryan, it is but natural that Standard Oil should try to defeat Taft by spending money for Bryan. And with the chosen tool of Standard Oil, as Bryan's treasurer, it was ridiculously easy.

No, Foraker and Haskell did not commit "the sin of being found out." That is not why they are haunted by spectres of transactions they thought dead and unknown. But their fall is caused by that public demand for absolute honesty in business which has been awakened by a young man named T. Roosevelt.

Taft did not repudiate Foraker for "the sin of being found out," but because for the first time it had been proved that Foraker had been party to transactions which had a shadow of suspicion.

THE REPUBLICAN COUNTY PLATFORM.

The platform adopted by the Republicans of Nye county stands for a clean, efficient and economic administration of state, county and town governments.

For the enactment of a banking law which shall afford absolute protection to depositors.

For the separation of the offices of sheriff and assessor.

For a direct primary law.

For county officers on fixed salary commensurate with service required.

For the payment of all fees into the county treasury.

For a law providing a uniform system of text books for pupils of the public schools free of expense.

For per diem and mileage of witnesses in criminal cases.

For public official surety bonds at county expense.

The platform denounces the surreptitious enactment increasing the salary of district attorney to $7500 and fees; the reckless extravagance of the Democratic administration of state, county and town governments.

SAYS LAW HAS BEEN JUGGLED

In an address before the Association of Freight Traffic Officers in St. Louis, E. F. Clarke of the interstate commission, said:

"I doubt if the whole history of lawmaking in this country discloses such a record of ignoring, evading and defying law as has marked the course of the interstate commerce law. Its purpose has been defeated through technicalities, but it must not be assumed that the effort toward government regulation of interstate commerce has been, is, or will be a failure, or that it will be abandoned in despair. There will be no vindictiveness, no playing to the galleries, and no partiality in administering the law as laid down by congress, but there will be a firm purpose and an earnest effort to enforce the full intent."

Mr. Clarke also said that the roads should be permitted to retain traffic associations providing their articles of incorporation and their rules are subject to approval by a federal tribunal and are made public. He opposed the proposal that a complaint against an increased rate should automatically suspend such rate, but urged that the commission be given authority to suspend a proposed increase in rates until its reasonableness could be determined.

GOLD COMING IN FROM AUSTRALIA

IMPORTS OF GOLD PROMISE TO MAKE EXCHANGE MARKETS UNUSUALLY STRONG.

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—With the foreign exchange market virtually at the level where it has been customary for bankers to export gold, an importation of gold was received the other day, thus further complicating the international monetary situation. Goldman, Sachs and company announced the arrival of $750,000 gold from Australia, but as this importation was arranged for eight weeks ago it is probable that the movement will not extend any further, although it has been customary to receive gold from Australia at this time. Since the time the gold was arranged for importation, the foreign exchange situation has completely shifted, and this does not suggest a continuation of the movement. However it may be taken up later.

Australia is under obligations to make heavy remittances to London in payment of dividends to stockholders in Australian gold mining enterprises and for other purposes, and whenever it is possible to reduce the expenses of such remittances by sending gold to San Francisco for transfer through the sub-treasury to New York, to be employed here in the purchase of sterling exchange, gold has been sent from Australia in the manner indicated. The announcement of the arrival of the gold was made at a time when London bankers were negotiating with their New York correspondents for shipments of gold to South America. No gold was engaged for shipment to this quarter, but conditions were said to be very favorable for such transactions, and it is probable that the gold export movement, which Wall street has expected, will be started by shipments to South America on account of London bankers, and then be shifted to London and the continent.

Because of the exchange that must be secured in connection with the New York city warrants for payment in London on November 1, amounting to a major part of the original payment of $5,000,000, it is probable that the exchange market will continue strong and possibly reach the level where gold can be shipped abroad with profit. The enormous falling off in the volume of commodity exports will materially reduce the number of exchange bills and those depending on these to make remittances will be forced to buy bills of another class. This alone, should be sufficient to cause a strong exchange market in the coming month. Owing to the low money rate the issue of bankers' bills cannot be reckoned up, this further reducing the supply of exchange bills.

THE STOCK MARKET.

(By Associated Press.)
NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—Recovery in prices substantially extended throughout the stock market today, and the advance was much less irregular than the uncertain and hesitating movement yesterday. The market became furiously active and buoyant toward the end. Bonds were firm.

THE LION AND THE MOUSE.

The Butler theater offers a nice bill for tonight. The "Lion and the Mouse," a musical satire, is a premium edition of good nature and a destroyer of melancholy. It has a plot and a pretty chorus. W. M. Dow will sing two new songs, and Nora Emmett has choice ballads for the evening.
